Four Winds Nursery

Garden Book

1939

FOUR WINDS FARM NURSERY, Inc.
EGGERTSVILLE NEW YORK.

W. Gratwick

This Catalogue for 1939 is largely devoted to perennials. In it you will find many interesting new plants including: Columbine Longissima with spurs  $3\frac{1}{2}$  to 4" long; our newly developed strain of Delphinium which is mildew resistant, hardy and most suitable in this location, with enormous double florets in a wide range of colors including white; the finest collection of hardy Chrysanthemums in this section of the country; and an unusual variety of new and rare plants.

Our perennial gardens of last year caused so much favorable comment that this spring our display will be right out on Main Street so that it can be seen by all and the plants will be so handled that it will be easy to take them away safely and quickly by car. The plants will be all ready in pots or wrapped in burlap so that they can be moved to your garden in full bloom with absolute safety. We invite you to drop in frequently during the year to see the many interesting periods of bloom in the nursery.

Four Winds Perennials

TO PRODUCE quality perennials requires proper equipment, understanding of their cultural requirements and necessary time and care to test the new and rare varieties that are continually being brought before the gardening public's attention.

Four Winds' policy is to grow only the best and to grow these in a manner to assure their success when transplanted to your garden. No expense is spared in combatting insect and disease pests so that all plants going out of our nursery are healthy. Not all types of perennials do well in this locality, consequently we have discarded those strains which have been tested and not found satisfactory.

Varieties marked with an * are suitable for the rock garden.

Hardy Korean and Garden Types—The amazing developments in recent years of this lovely garden subject have been so rapid that many of the garden minded public have been unable to keep up with them.

Earliness of bloom (we have Chrysanthemums blooming in the nursery as early as August 20th). Hardiness (The introduction of Chrysanthemum coreanum blood into the new hybrids has increased their hardiness materially). A wide range of lovely colors have made them the most important easily grown perennial of the fall garden. Full sun, rich soil and plenty of water are their chief requirements. Young sturdy plants will be furnished in 3" pots. They are better than old woody field clumps. Pinch twice before July 1st to make low bushy plants.

BEARDED VARIETIES—

There have been such rapid strides in the development of the common garden Iris in the past few years that it has resulted in a great deal of confusion as to what is and what is not a good Iris. Many growers still carry a long list of the old varieties without realizing that they have been greatly surpassed by new ones. We carry a small stock of these newer types and can direct you to a grower right here in this neighborhood who has one of the most outstanding collections in the country.

Varieties marked with an * are suitable for the rock garden.

FOUR WINDS POTTED ROSES

(Guaranteed to bloom the first season—except climbers)

For the past three years we have been experimenting with a new type of pot to grow roses in, one that will not cramp the roots so that when the rose is taken out and planted in the ground it will continue to grow and bloom to its fullest extent year after year. You can select your rose in full bloom, take it home and plant it, and it will continue to bloom without interruption.
